Wilhelm crashes to the floor and feels excruciating pain in his lower leg.

Wilhelm is rushing for work but oh no what’s that on the floor...

I will use my X-ray superpowers... Anatomy, physics, patient care...

The radiographers use their knowledge and skills to position Wilhelm for his X-rays.

A reporting radiographer identifies a fracture on Wilhelm’s X-ray and writes a report on the image...

Wilhelm’s leg is put in plaster. He will have another X-ray in 6 weeks to assess healing...

To be continued...

Rhiannon Dumper
Specialist Interventional Radiographer
University Hospitals Plymouth Trust