

Essential Training for Managers Course Cardiff 5th and 6th March 2019

The third Developing Tomorrows Leaders: Essential Training for Managers course was held in Cardiff on the 5th and 6th March 2019 . Established and delivered by professional and industrial relations officers: Alexandra Lipton, Sue Johnson, Kevin Tucker and Richard Pembridge, delegates tackled in depth, real life radiography related management scenarios along with exploration of professional management topics including professionalism, partnership working, managing change. New to the programme on the second day was an interactive session on investigative and communication skills. In the afternoon delegates were treated to an inspiring session with Bernadette McCarthy, Radiotherapy Services manager at Velindre NHS trust, sharing her career progression and insight into the life of a service manager. Commenting on the course Bernadette said “ I thoroughly enjoyed the day. It was inspiring for me, as an experienced manager of some years, to hear the leaders of the future so engaged, interested and eager to learn. I feel that our professions are in safe hands”

Delegate feedback was excellent with comments including

Would recommend this course to anybody either in management or aspiring to be

Excellent interactive course with continuous opportunity for active learning

Couldn't fault the course. I honestly felt empowered and refreshed when leaving