Job details – Lecturers OR Senior Lecturers in Diagnostic Radiography

We seek experienced, enthusiastic and highly motivated UK HCPC-registered Diagnostic Radiographers to join the progressive Diagnostic Radiography course team in the Department of Allied Health Sciences at London South Bank University. The successful candidates will be experienced radiographers and/or academics, committed to providing a high-quality experience for students on our recently revalidated suite of pre, post-registration and CPPD programmes. Teaching experience is desirable but not essential for the lecturer role. Experience of radiographer reporting would also be desirable but not essential for the role.

As part of the vibrant and inter-professional School of Health and Social Care and from our base in central London, the successful candidate will be expected to contribute to our developing programme of research and enterprise activities with our prestigious network of partners in London, across the UK and Internationally.

The Department of Allied Health Sciences is committed to supporting its staff in pursuing scholarship and research in teaching and discipline-based areas. A comprehensive staff development programme is in operation across the University, supporting a transparent career development framework.

Applications are welcome from applicants on a full time, part-time and job share basis. Interview date will be notified to the shortlisted candidates. The JD is available by email (pictonr@lsbu.ac.uk). Please send in a CV and a covering letter saying why you are suitable for the role and why you would want to join us here at LSBU. For an informal discussion or to arrange a visit please contact: Rachel Picton: Associate Professor Radiography
